At Manpojin (N 41-09, E 126-17) (BA-7259) on the Yalu River, and at other points in Korea, where Chinese liaison officers formerly dominated their North Korean colleagues, the situation is now reversed and the North Koreans are exerting the greater influence. North Korean officers have been replaced by officers of higher rank. At Manpojin a North Korean general arrived and began to play the leading role in discussions, putting the Chinese in a somewhat uncomfortable and less important position. The North Koreans thus appear now to be the ones who are representing the Russians.

Comment.

the North Koreans were subservient to the Chinese during the discussions at Panmunjon concerning the formation of the political conference.
